Dear Sir/Madam,

MARCH 2007 QUARTERLY ACTIVITIES REPORT

2007 Forbes Exploration Program

The Forbes Joint Venture did not undertake any significant exploration activity or expenditure during the quarter ended 31 March 2007. The testing of the South Buckeye 1-18 well is expected to commence shortly and confirmation of a commercial flow of gas at South Buckeye will substantially upgrade the additional offset prospects located near this particular target.

The Joint Venture's technical team have been evaluating the results following the drilling of the South Buckeye and Heavenly prospects in late 2006 and have been working on the scheduling of the next phase of drilling.

Background of Forbes Project

Livingstone holds a 50% interest in the Forbes Gas Project exploring for natural gas in the Sacramento Basin of California. This area has produced gas from the Forbes formation since 1934 with cumulative production to date of 600 billion cubic feet of gas. The Forbes Joint Venture has two producing wells within the project area, the Larner 1-12 and Larner 2-12 wells, and has two discoveries awaiting completion, South Buckeye 1-18 and Edge 1-10 wells.

Forbes Exploration Strategy

The Forbes Joint Venture has developed numerous drill prospects with many of these prospects having low risk follow-on targets should the initial prospect be a successful discovery. Besides the Forbes sandstone formation located at depths of 8,000 to 9,500 feet, the Joint Venture has identified additional prospects in the shallower Starkey/Winters formations around 4,000 feet and deeper Guinda formation below 9,500 feet. The prospect sizes vary according to which objective formation is considered the primary target, however in general the sizes vary from 1 to 5 billion cubic feet. Some of the deeper targets in the Guinda formation are tens of billion cubic feet.

Corporate

The Company's share of gas revenue from the Larner 1-12 and Larner 2-12 wells during the quarter has been sufficient to cover most of the Company's ongoing operating costs.

The Company has been evaluating funding alternatives for future exploration activities. This process is now well advanced and the Company expects to be in a position to release details shortly.
